

Christmas Tea Light

Project One

Materials

Glass tea light

Broken china in three colours: red, yellow, green

Crystal clear Fix it Fast - silicone adhesive

Ice block sticks for the glue

Silver glitter glue

Sandpaper

1. Sand the tea light to create a better adhesion.

2. If your china is in large pieces wrap it in an old towel, then place in a plastic bag. Use a hammer to break the china into smaller pieces (they need to be quite small because the glass is small).

3. Organise your pieces into colour groups for easier placement once you get started.

4. Squeeze out a small amount of silicone into a plastic dish (if you squeeze out too much it will dry out before you can use it).

5. Using an ice block stick smear some silicone adhesive to the glass and begin sticking the tiles into it.

Be sure to use enough glue so that you can push the tiles in but not so much that it oozes up between the tiles.

Helpful Hint: I used the edge of the plate for the bottom edge of the glass.

6. Keep smearing glue and sticking on your tiles until the whole glass is covered.

7. Leave the glass to dry completely- 5 hours is best.

8. Then squeeze glitter glue into the gaps - not to worry if it goes onto the tiles as this adds a lovely Christmas touch.
